

Trevor Hall Steel Sculptures

Trevor Hall was born in Aspen Colorado and currently resides in Fruita Colorado. He started drawing from a very young age and began his venture into art with ink and pencil drawings. Then when he learned the welding trade after high school he quickly adapted his new skill to his art by creating steel sculptures. Trevor began working with his father doing custom steel work and a customer came to them wanting two steel vultures to guard her driveway on Buzzard Creek road. That commission was the beginning of many steel pieces. Since then he has also made a wolf head for client that raises and trains Czechoslovakian wolf dogs. His love for nature is reflected in his choice of subject matter. Trevor loves to be outside whether he's hiking, biking, fishing, or just playing his guitar on the porch. He focuses on the North American animals he is familiar with but wildlife in general is his inspiration.
